

The Large Bank Protection Act: Raising the CFPB's Enforcement and Supervision Asset Threshold Would Place American Consumers at Risk

Christopher L. Peterson May 3, 2018

Executive Summary

Congress is currently considering raising the total asset threshold for Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) supervision and enforcement of banks from $10 billion to $50 billion. This report analyzes the effect of this change on the number of banks subject to CFPB oversight. Furthermore, this report looks at the CFPB's enforcement track record in cases against banks within the $10-to-$50-billion-range, and highlights examples of enforcement actions previously taken by the CFPB that would have been impossible if the asset threshold were set at $50 billion under the original Dodd-Frank Act.

Raising the CFPB supervision and enforcement threshold from ten to fifty billion dollars would:

- Cut the number of banks subject to CFPB supervision and enforcement by 65% from 124 to 43. Currently, 124 out of 5,679 banks are subject to CFPB enforcement. Raising the CFPB oversight threshold to fifty billion dollars would place 81 of the nation's largest banks beyond the supervisory and enforcement jurisdiction of the CFPB.
- Eliminate CFPB oversight of nearly 50 of the largest banks bailed out during the financial crisis. Forty-nine of 81 large banks in the $10 to $50 billion asset range took TARP funds during the Great Recession. After bailing out these banks with taxpayer money, Congress is now considering removing them from the supervision and enforcement authority of the agency designed to prevent some of the same behavior that caused the crisis.
- Eliminate critical CFPB law enforcement cases against large banks that violate federal law. Past CFPB cases that would have been impossible under the proposed $50 billion threshold involved illegal activity like:
  - Widespread "redlining" in the Northeast, resulting in the largest redlining settlement in history that provided subsidies to borrowers in redlined neighborhoods as a form of consumer relief.
  - Widespread "redlining" in the Memphis area, where Black home mortgage borrowers were charged over $300 more annually than similarly situated White borrowers and Black loan applicants were denied more than twice as often for mortgages as White applicants.
  - Unfair home mortgage collection practices that illegally railroaded families into foreclosures and short sales.
  - Signing up customers for credit card "add-on" products they did not request and charging customers for credit monitoring services they did not receive.
  - o Denying bank customers the full value of funds deposited into their checking and savings accounts.

These cases show that it is not large banks that need protection from the CFPB, but ordinary Americans who need protection from illegal financial practices at some large banks, including those with between $10 billion and $50 billion in assets.

Background

Congress created the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) in the wake of the largest financial crisis since the Great Depression. When residential mortgage backed securities proved worthless, investors all across the world took horrendous financial losses. Most of large American banks collapsed, forcing Congress and the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System to bail out the financial sector. In response to this crisis, Congress adopted the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act which transferred regulatory and primary enforcement authority over the nation's consumer financial protection laws to the newly created Consumer Financial Protection Bureau. While the Dodd-Frank Act has been controversial in some respects, the CFPB has focused on ensuring consumer financial services offered to the public are transparent and fair. This mission, and the CFPB itself, are overwhelmingly popular with the public including Republicans, Independents, and Democrats.<sup>1</sup>

The CFPB's supervision and law enforcement responsibilities have been implemented through the Bureau's Supervision, Enforcement, and Fair Lending Division (SEFL).<sup>2</sup> The CFPB has supervisory authority over large banks and credit unions with over $10 billion in assets, as well as other supervised non-bank consumer finance businesses specified by Congress or Bureau regulations.<sup>3</sup> Non-bank consumer finance companies subject to supervision include mortgage originators, brokers, servicers, and foreclosure assistance providers; private student loan originators and student loan servicers; and payday lenders. The Bureau has also issued regulations asserting supervisory jurisdiction over certain large financial companies, including consumer reporting agencies, debt collection businesses, international remittance providers, and automobile finance compliance with consumer financial protection laws. The Bureau's supervisory staff publishes an examination manual to assist companies in preparing for exams. In past years, CFPB supervisory staff also regularly published a Supervisory Highlights report sharing public results of the examiners' work.<sup>5</sup> Examinations remain confidential unless the exam uncovers evidence of serious violations of the law requiring referral of the company to the Bureau's Office of Enforcement.

The CFPB's Office of Enforcement has the mission of enforcing consumer financial laws. Enforcement investigations arise either from supervisory exams or when staff uncover suspected violations of consumer protection law through consumer complaints, referrals from state or federal regulators, or other sources of information. As with supervision, the CFPB's Enforcement Office has enforcement jurisdiction over banks and credit unions with more than $10 billion in assets.<sup>6</sup> With respect to non-banks, the Bureau has enforcement jurisdiction over any "covered person" or "service provider" to a covered person, other than automobile dealers that do not routinely engage in "buy-here, pay-here" financing, as well as a short list of other specifically excluded businesses.7

Congress authorized the CFPB to enforce federal consumer financial laws either through administrative enforcement cases brought before an administrative law judge or through its own authority to litigate in federal court.<sup>8</sup> Administrative enforcement actions are conducted under a CFPB regulation that largely mirrors similar enforcement agencies, with trials before an administrative law judge and decisions reviewable on appeal to the Bureau's Director.<sup>9</sup> In both administrative proceedings and civil litigation, Congress authorized the CFPB to seek any appropriate legal or equitable relief including restitution, disgorgement, and civil money penalties from businesses and individuals that violate federal law.<sup>10</sup>

In recent years, some members of Congress have argued that CFPB supervisory and enforcement jurisdiction over banks and credit unions should be decreased by raising the total asset threshold from ten billion dollars to fifty billion dollars. Most notably, H.R. 3072, The Bureau of Consumer Financial Protection Examination and Reporting Threshold Act of 2017, sponsored by Rep. Lacy Clay (D–MO), would implement such a change by striking $10 billion from 12 U.S.C. § 5515(a) and replacing it with a threshold of $50 billion. This report responds both to H.R. 3072 in particular as well as similar future proposals that may seek to raise asset threshold for CFPB supervision of and enforcement against banks.

CFPB Supervision and Enforcement Jurisdiction by the Numbers: Large and Very Large Banks

Under current law, the CFPB has supervision and enforcement authority over banks only if the bank has total assets exceeding $10 billion.<sup>11</sup> This threshold leaves the CFPB with a relatively small supervision and enforcement footprint in terms of the actual number of banks subject to its oversight. According to 2017 FDIC data, America has 5,679 banks. Figure 1 illustrates that out of these institutions, only 124 banks have total assets in excess of $10 billion and are thereby subject to CFPB supervisory and enforcement jurisdiction. In contrast, 97.82 percent of all banks are not subject to CFPB investigations or exams under current law. Each of the 5,555 banks that are not subject to CFPB enforcement and examinations are listed by name and total assets in Appendix B. Currently, every small and medium bank in the country is already immune to CFPB exams and investigations under exiting law. The only the largest 2.18% of banks are subject to Nation's statistical yearbook, 70 of the world's 211 countries have a gross domestic product smaller than the total assets of those banks currently subject to CFPB enforcement.<sup>12</sup>

&lt;sup>7</sup> 12 U.S.C. §§ 5515(a), (c); § 5516(a), (d). Unless they are acting as a service provider to a covered person, other businesses explicitly excluded from CFPB enforcement authority include nonfinancial retailers of goods or services, real estate brokers, manufactured home retailers, accountants or tax preparers, and, in some circumstances, attorneys. Id. § 5517. But See CFPB v. Fredrick J. Hanna & Assocs., 114 F. Supp. 3d 1342, 1362–70 (N.D. Ga. 2015) (holding debt collection lawsuit mill subject to CFPB jurisdiction under the FDCPA and the Dodd-Frank Act).

Nevertheless, H.R. 3072 and similar proposals would raise the CFPB supervision and enforcement asset threshold from $10 to $50 billion. As illustrated in Figure 2 and Appendix A, raising the CFPB oversight threshold from $10 to $50 billion would exclude an additional 81 banks from CFPB jurisdiction. The proposal would decrease the total number of banks subject to CFPB supervision and enforcement by about 65 percent leaving only 43 out of 5,679 banks subject to CFPB jurisdiction. H.R. 3072 and similar proposals would allow the Bureau to conduct exams or investigations of less than one percent (0.76%) of all banks. This change would eliminate the CFPB's ability to enforce the law against dozens of the largest banks in the world. By way of context, if Congress adopts H.R. 3072, the CFPB could not investigate banks with more assets than the gross domestic product of 130 of the world's 211 countries.<sup>13</sup> Collectively, H.R. 3072 would place $1.8 trillion in bank assets beyond the reach of CFPB supervision and enforcement.

Congress Bailed-out Most Banks Within the Ten-to-Fifty-Billion-Dollar Asset Range Under the Troubled Asset Relief Program (TARP)

As the financial crisis progressed it became clear to the White House and Congress that potentially thousands of banks were insolvent. Faced with the choice of a complete collapse of the American financial sector or bailing out the banking industry, Congress adopted the Emergency Economic Stabilization Act of 2008 which President George W. Bush signed into law on October 3, 2008. This emergency legislation created the Troubled Asset Relief Program, which allowed the United States government to use taxpayer funds to purchase "toxic" mortgage-related securities from banks in order to prevent these banks from collapsing. TARP also purchased preferred stock and equity warrants from banks. In the years following the financial crisis the TARP program disbursed $429.7 billion in federal funds.<sup>14</sup> Eventually, nearly all disbursed TARP funds were recovered and purchased assets ultimately generated a modest positive return for the government.<sup>15</sup> TARP funds were ultimately dwarfed by the amount of low-cost credit extended to banks by the Federal Reserve System.<sup>16</sup>

While taking TARP funds is neither a perfect measure of harm to the public fisc, nor a barometer of bank insolvency, it is nonetheless an important indicator of the vulnerability of banks to questionable decision making in the consumer financial services market. To this end, Appendix A identifies which banks with total assets over $10 billion in 2017 received TARP disbursements. Of the 124 banks currently subject to CFPB supervision and enforcement, 83 took TARP funds from taxpayers. Banks taking TARP funds were not concentrated only among the very largest money center banks. Rather, a majority (60.4 percent) of the large regional banks that would be protected by raising the CFPB enforcement threshold to $50 billion also took TARP funds. Specifically, 49 of the 81 large banks that H.R. 3072 and similar proposals would protect from CFPB oversight took TARP funds. These TARP-receiving banks protected by H.R. 3072 currently hold approximately $1,145,030,958,000 in assets.

Ironically, many of the large banks that received taxpayer assistance during the financial crisis are now asking Congress to eliminate oversight of the one agency specifically tasked with protecting the public from precisely those practices that caused the crisis is the first place.

The CFPB's Enforcement Track Record Against Banks Within the Ten-to-Fifty-Billion-Dollar Asset Range

In the few short years of the CFPB's active law enforcement program, it has already uncovered serious violations of federal law by banks with between $10 billion and $50 billion in assets. The following cases—all of which would have been impossible under the proposed $50 billion asset threshold—demonstrate the need for CFPB jurisdiction over banks within the ten-to-fifty-billion-dollar asset range.

Hudson City Savings Bank ($35 Billion in Assets): Illegal and Discriminatory "Redlining" in New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, and Pennsylvania

The CFPB and Department of Justice (DOJ) found that Hudson City Savings Bank (Hudson City), which has $35 billion in assets,<sup>17</sup> engaged in illegal "redlining," or the denial of credit and other financial services to those living in a certain neighborhood based on the racial or ethnic makeup of that neighborhood.<sup>18</sup> The CFPB and DOJ alleged that Hudson Savings violated the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, which outlaws racial discrimination "with respect to any aspect of a credit transaction,"<sup>19</sup> and the Fair Housing Act, which prohibits racial discrimination in mortgage lending.<sup>20</sup> According to the consent order entered into by Hudson City and the CFPB, Hudson City redlined majority-Black-and-Hispanic neighborhoods in four states: Connecticut, New Jersey, New York, and Pennsylvania, and was forced to pay a $5.5 million civil monetary penalty for violating the Equal Credit Opportunity Act.<sup>21</sup> These alleged violations included:

- Deliberately excluding majority-Black-and-Hispanic neighborhoods from mortgage lending activity. Hudson City operated nearly 90% of retail branches and 93% of mortgage broker activity outside of majority-Black-and-Hispanic areas. As a result, between 2011 and 2013, "only 3.7 percent of the [mortgage] applications generated by brokers came from majority-Black-and-Hispanic areas, and only 18.2 percent were made by Black or Hispanic borrowers."<sup>22</sup>
- Receiving only 4.8 percent of all mortgage loan applications between 2009 and 2013 for homes in majority-Black-and-Hispanic areas, even though 35.9 percent of census tracts in metropolitan areas served by the bank were majority-Black-and-Hispanic, and even though peer banks generated 13.2 percent of mortgage applications in majority-Black-and-Hispanic areas.<sup>23</sup>
- Sending marketing and advertising to regions with a low proportion of majority-Black-and-Hispanic neighborhoods at the expense of regions with high majority-Black-and-Hispanic neighborhoods,<sup>24</sup> and failing to avoid redlining through an adequate compliance program.<sup>25</sup>

The CFPB's enforcement action against Hudson City not only resulted in a $5.5 million penalty; it also required Hudson City to compensate for its redlining by making available $25 million as loan subsidies for residents of the redlined neighborhoods.<sup>26</sup> The settlement between Hudson City and the CFPB is the largest redlining settlement in history to provide these direct subsidies as a form of consumer restitution.<sup>27</sup>

Bancorpsouth Bank ($15 Billion in Assets): Illegal and Discriminatory "Redlining" in Memphis

The CFPB brought a second redlining case against Bancorpsouth Bank ("Bancorpsouth"), which has $15 billion in assets.<sup>28</sup> According to the consent order entered into by Bancorpsouth, the CFPB, and the DOJ, the bank was ordered to pay a civil monetary penalty of $3 million for violating the Equal Credit Opportunity Act.<sup>29</sup> Bancorpsouth's alleged violations include:

- Rejecting over 300 Black mortgage loan applicants "at significantly higher rates than similarly situated White applicants." From 2011 to 2013, for example, Black applicants for first-lien mortgages were 2.2 times more likely to have their applications denied than White applicants, and Black applicants for second-lien mortgages were 2.9 times more likely to have applications denied than White applicants.<sup>30</sup>
- Charging over 900 Black borrowers of first-lien mortgages APRs "30.3 basis points higher than APRs of similarly situated White borrowers."<sup>31</sup> Black borrowers paid, on average, $360 more than a White borrower "each year he or she held the loan."<sup>32</sup>
- Concentrating retail bank branches to avoid lending in minority neighborhoods. Of the 22 Bancorpsouth branches in Memphis, all 22 "were located outside majority-minority neighborhoods."<sup>33</sup> Bancorpsouth did not open any branches in majority-minority neighborhoods, even though two separate consultants identified several majority-minority neighborhoods as top candidates for branch expansion in the Memphis area.
- Overwhelmingly directing marketing and advertising toward majority-White neighborhoods, including "three direct-mail marketing campaigns ... of which 90 percent went to majority-White areas and just 5 percent went to high-minority neighborhoods."<sup>34</sup>
- Instituting expressly discriminatory policies, including specifically instructing loan officers to reject "minority applicants more quickly than White applicants."<sup>35</sup> Additionally, numerous Bancorpsouth employees were captured on an audio recording making derisive racial comments including use of the "n-word."<sup>36</sup>
- Failing to comply with the bank's Community Reinvestment Act ("CRA") responsibilities by excluding "approximately 85 percent of the 523,000 African Americans" living in the Memphis metropolitan area from its CRA assessment area, reducing access to credit and investment in majority-minority neighborhoods.<sup>37</sup>

The CFPB forced Bancorpsouth to end these discriminatory policies. In addition to a $3 million civil monetary penalty, the CFPB also ordered Bancorpsouth to correct its policies by providing $4 million in loan subsidies, expanding branch offices into minority neighborhoods, substantially increasing advertising to majority-minority neighborhoods, and complying with its CRA requirements.<sup>38</sup>

Flagstar Bank FSB ($17 Billion in Assets): Illegally Blocked Consumers from Obtaining Home Mortgage Loan Modifications and Loss Mitigation Services

The CFPB brought an enforcement action against Flagstar Bank FSB ("Flagstar"), a bank with $17 billion in assets,<sup>39</sup> for illegally preventing foreclosed borrowers from taking advantage of loss mitigation services and loan modifications. In a consent order entered into by the CFPB and Flagstar, the CFPB concluded that Flagstar engaged in unfair acts and practices in violation of sections 1036(a)(1)(B) and 1031(c)(1) of the Dodd-Frank Act.<sup>40</sup> These unfair acts and practices included:

- Frustrating borrowers' efforts to access loss mitigation services because Flagstar failed to review loss mitigation applications in a reasonable amount of time, and withheld from borrowers critical information required to complete their applications.<sup>41</sup> These actions "caused unnecessary foreclosures" and in some cases "forced borrowers … [into] bankruptcy or short sale."<sup>42</sup>
- Unfairly denying loan modifications because Flagstar miscalculated the applicant's income. Flagstar "lacked a systemized, controlled process for calculating borrower income," which led to improper denials of loan modification applications, forcing improperly denied borrowers into unnecessary foreclosures, bankruptcies, or short sales.<sup>43</sup>
- The CFPB also concluded that Flagstar violated 12 C.F.R. § 1024.41, the "Mortgage Servicing Rule," by failing to notify borrowers of their right to appeal loan modification denials.<sup>44</sup> Flagstar not only failed to inform borrowers of their right to appeal these denials, the bank also incorrectly informed borrowers that they could only appeal if they resided in certain states, and "regularly failed to provide [borrowers] an Appeal Form."<sup>45</sup>
- Violating the Mortgage Servicing Rule by failing to implement "policies and procedures reasonably designed to ensure the bank can provide accurate and timely disclosures to borrowers."<sup>46</sup>

This enforcement action resulted in an order forcing Flagstar to pay $27.5 million in consumer relief, $20 million of which was earmarked for foreclosed consumers.<sup>47</sup> Flagstar was also required to pay $10 million in civil monetary penalties and implement CFPB-mandated policies and procedures to correct its violations.<sup>48</sup>

First National Bank of Omaha ($20 Billion in Assets): Signed Up and Billed Consumers for Credit Card "Add-on" Products They Did Not Agree to or Receive

The CFPB also brought an enforcement action against First National Bank of Omaha ("First National"), a bank with $20 billion in assets,<sup>49</sup> for enrolling in and billing customers for unwanted credit card and credit monitoring products. Specifically, the CFPB concluded that First National engaged in unfair and deceptive acts and practices in violation of 1036(a)(1)(B) and 1031(c)(1) of the CFPA, including:

- Deceiving customers into purchasing a "debt cancellation" add-on service during telemarketing calls by referring to the service as "an important account feature" of their credit card and "our way of saying thanks."<sup>50</sup> First National trained employees to obscure from cardholders that they were purchasing the debt cancellation service by interpreting a customer's agreement to receive information about the service and verification of their city of birth as consent to enroll in the debt cancellation service.<sup>51</sup>
- Deceiving customers about the ease and simplicity of cancelling the debt cancellation service. Although First National employees told customers that they could cancel "anytime," "immediately," "no questions asked," employees were trained to make cancellation difficult by refusing customers' "requests to cancel several times before agreeing to cancel" and using a "sales incentive plan that awarded" employees who kept customers from cancelling.<sup>52</sup>
- Illegally preventing customers from actually using First National's debt cancellation service through obscure and strict eligibility requirements, including a full-time work requirement, denial for "pre-existing conditions," and other "onerous administrative requirements."<sup>53</sup> First National employees failed to disclose many of these requirements prior to customers' enrollments.<sup>54</sup>
- Billing customers for credit monitoring services they never received. Customers enrolling in First National's credit monitoring services did not receive these services for some time after enrollment because First National was required to receive "sufficient written authorization and personal verification information" from enrollees before providing services. First National nonetheless billed customers the full fee for this period, even though services were not provided.<sup>55</sup>

In a consent order entered into by the CFPB and First National, First National was forced to pay $27.75 million in redress "to approximately 257,000 Affected Consumers," as well as a $4.5 million civil monetary penalty.<sup>56</sup> Additionally, the CFPB also required First National to correct its unfair and deceptive practices by implementing several compliance and risk management plans.<sup>57</sup>

Citizens Bank of Pennsylvania ($36 Billion in Assets): Denied Customers the Full Credit of Their Deposits

The CFPB brought an enforcement action against Citizens Bank of Pennsylvania, ("Citizens Bank") a bank with $36 billion in assets,<sup>58</sup> for engaging in deceptive acts and practices in violation of sections 1031(a) and 1036(a)(1)(B) of the CFPA. Specifically, Citizens Bank denied customers the full credit of their bank deposits. In a consent order entered into by the parties, the CFPB concluded that Citizens Bank and its parent company, Citizens Holding Company, failed to properly credit consumer bank deposits under $25.<sup>59</sup>

For transactions above $25, Citizens Bank employees reconciled customers' checks with the amounts of their accompanying deposit slips to ensure customers were fully credited with their deposits.<sup>60</sup> The bank abandoned this policy, however, for transactions below $25. Instead, on these transactions, Citizens Bank employees "credited the consumer's account with the amount read on the deposit slip," even when they "knew the items the consumer deposited indicated a different amount."<sup>61</sup> According to the consent order, Citizens Bank, "failed to detect this compliance failure due to weaknesses" in its compliance management system.<sup>62</sup>

In response to this illegal behavior, the CFPB ordered Citizens Bank to pay up to $11 million in consumer relief and $7.5 million civil money penalties.<sup>63</sup> The Bureau also ordered Citizens Bank to implement a compliance plan to ensure it did not engage in future deceptive activity.<sup>64</sup>

Conclusion

The CFPB's enforcement track record shows American families need the benefit of a supervision and law enforcement agency with respect to banks that have between $10 billion to $50 billion in assets. These examples of CFPB law enforcement cases demonstrate that banks in this asset range are just as capable of engaging in illegal activity and harming consumers as banks with more than $50 billion in assets. Although H.R. 3072 is entitled "[t]he Bureau of Consumer Financial Protection Examination and Reporting Threshold Act of 2017," a more accurate name would be the "Large Bank Protection Act" because it would effectively eliminate the CFPB's ability to investigate illegal practices among banks of this asset size. Proposals to raise the CFPB enforcement threshold to $50 billion would drastically reduce the CFPB's ability to protect consumers by restricting the Bureau's oversight authority to just 43 out of 5,769 banks. To place the size of banks with $50 billion dollars in total assets in perspective, a financial institution of this size has assets larger than the nominal gross domestic product of over 130 of the world's 211 countries.<sup>65</sup> Financial institutions with over ten billion dollars in assets are fully capable of funding the necessary compliance programs needed to engage with the CFPB's examiners and enforcement investigators. While there are many benefits for consumers from access to banking services, America's working families deserve the benefit of a federal regulator specifically dedicated to ensuring the public is protected from illegal financial practices. Accordingly, Congress should recognize the need for CFPB jurisdiction over banks in the ten-to-fifty-billion asset range and choose to retain the Bureau's existing enforcement threshold.
